Nottoway, VA - The Nottoway High School Naval Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps (NJROTC) program successfully completed its Annual Military Inspection this week, demonstrating discipline, teamwork, and pride in service under the watchful eye of the Reviewing Officer, Mr. Kevin Wilson, CDR, USN (Retired), the NJROTC Area Four Manager.

The inspection opened with the formal ceremonial phase, where cadets were evaluated across multiple performance areas designed to measure the unit's readiness and adherence to NJROTC standards. Cadets began with a unit Personnel Inspection, where uniforms, grooming standards, and attention to detail were assessed at close range.

The drill segment consisted of the cadets performing the 16-count Manual of Arms, led by Drill Commander Cadet Ensign Jeremiah Jones.

Adding to the ceremony's sense of tradition and patriotism, the National Anthem was performed by Cadet Seaman Apprentice Lillian Rodriguez, whose confident vocal performance set a respectful tone for the remainder of the inspection.

Cadets concluded the ceremony, led by the unit's Company Commander, Cadet Lieutenant Commander Daphne Moore, with a formal Pass-in-Review, showcasing unit pride, coordination, and military bearing.

Inspection Highlight: While the inspection identified areas for improvement, Nottoway High School NJROTC earned an overall grade of passing, marking a successful inspection and providing a clear roadmap for growth moving forward.

Cadets Recognized for Exemplary Uniform Standards

Among the day’s top recognitions, several cadets earned distinction for maintaining exceptional uniform standards. Those achieving an Exemplary Uniform during the inspection were:

★ Cadet Jeanna Jablonski	★ Cadet Kayden Ingram
★ Cadet Harmonye Terry	★ Cadet Baylee Tate
★ Cadet Ireth Lopez-Farrera	★ Cadet Lillian Rodriguez

Following the ceremonial phase, the inspection continued with an administrative and operational focus. The cadet staff presented a formal unit briefing to Commander Wilson and completed an administrative unit review, demonstrating leadership, organization, and an understanding of program requirements behind the scenes.

With renewed momentum and tangible goals in sight, the Nottoway NJROTC unit now turns its focus to sharpening performance, strengthening consistency, and building on the foundation demonstrated during this year’s Annual Military Inspection.
